What is Safeguarding?

A definition provided by NHS England is 'Safeguarding means protecting a citizen's health, wellbeing and human rights; enabling them to live free from harm, abuse and neglect'.

Currently there is four main industries which require a focus on safeguarding, these are: Education, Healthcare, Early years and Childcare and Social Work. Within these industries the training can vary from awareness training or training for 'Designated Safeguarding Leads'.

Being competent in the understanding of early signs and symptoms of safeguarding concerns will protect the child, young person or vulnerable adults from harm, abuse and neglect.
